Appear More Professional & Creative Than Others

Graphic design is a scientific art form through which messages can be conveyed to others and have a lasting impact on the minds of the audience. Design is carried out by graphic designers who, using their art and creativity, create artistic works by employing design tools. Graphic design is used in various fields such as logo design, poster design, brochure design, book design, catalog design, etc., and it helps convey the objective more effectively to the audience.

What is Graphic Design, also known as visual communication design? It's a discipline that gives a new shape and form to the way messages are conveyed. Graphic design is the art of visual communication. A graphic designer is someone who, through this art, creativity, and talent, creates a design that comprises text, symbols, and artistic elements. The effectiveness of a graphic design in establishing visual communication with the audience depends on the intelligence of its designer.

An intelligent graphic designer knows well how to manipulate space, images, and colors in a given design. Graphic design encompasses various areas, but what are its most common applications? Among the most common ones are visual identity, product packaging design, or the design of posters and advertising billboards. Did you know that graphic design, also known as graphic design, creates a series of visual elements with two main goals:

- Expressing or conveying a specific concept to the audience
- Conveying information with a specific purpose and direction

What is the Purpose of Graphic Design?

The chair we sit on, the shoes we wear, or any item or equipment you can think of follows a unique design approach. Not having the right and suitable graphic design strategy for brands and online and offline businesses can incur irreparable damages to them. What do you associate Nike with? Yes, with the logo of the company. Graphic design can give identities to businesses, and this identity partly enables businesses to have more sales capability, achieve more success, and attract more audiences. Are you ready for several times more sales? Do you want your symbol or brand to be remembered by the audience with what name and address?

Online Graphic Design

Online graphic design refers to a set of methods where the client can place their design orders without physically being present at the premises, using the internet and online platforms. Currently, due to the presence of the coronavirus and the need to avoid physical presence more than ever, the demand for online graphic design services is felt. Zimex Apex, with its extensive experience in the field of design and graphics, has now been able to provide the entire process from order placement to delivery online by launching its website. Through the order placement feature, you can easily order all items such as posters, business cards, etc., online via our contact page.

What Are The Characteristics Of The Best Graphic Design Company?

If you intend to use the services of graphic design companies, it's essential to consider the following factors when choosing a company for your design work:

1. Credibility, extensive experience, and a strong portfolio: One of the most important features of a graphic design team that you should consider when choosing a graphic design company in Canada is the expertise and experience of the chosen company. Exceptional designers aren't born overnight! Years of practice, repetition, and a strong track record in graphic design have shaped these individuals into extraordinary designers. Therefore, before entrusting your graphic design needs to a company, make sure to review the experience and skills of the team members.

2. Communication skills: A good graphic design is created when the designer thoroughly understands the client's needs and objectives and knows what design they are creating and for what purpose. Therefore, communication skills are of paramount importance. If the members of a graphic design company fail to communicate effectively with you and lack skills in this area, the outcome of the work may not be satisfactory. Therefore, before starting to use the services of graphic design companies, make sure that the company has acceptable communication skills.
3. Ability to provide innovative ideas: Members of a graphic design company in Toronto should have a broader perspective on their surroundings. A professional and creative designer knows how to look at subjects from different angles to implement new and innovative ideas. Creativity is key in graphic design; therefore, if you are looking for a team of talented, innovative, young, and enthusiastic graphic designers, you can trust the services of Zimex Apex graphic design company.
4. Computer design skills: One of the most established features of a graphic design team is their ability to work with graphic design tools such as Photoshop or InDesign. Keep in mind that the expertise of a graphic designer who is proficient in using these tools differs from someone who only has mastery over one of these tools like Photoshop. Some individuals prefer to delegate graphic design services to a Photoshop expert instead of a graphic designer to reduce costs! A reputable design company in Toronto benefits from the most specialized and experienced graphic designers to provide graphic design services.
5. Possession of a strong resume and outstanding work history: Not only a graphic design company in Canada but every member of this team must have a strong resume. Providing graphic design services to well-known brands and businesses is one of the most significant strengths of a graphic design company. If you want to trust a graphic design company or team in Canada more easily, review the company's resume and work history before signing a graphic design contract.

Why Do We Need Graphic Design Services?

Most businesses require graphic design and design services to stand out and be recognized. For creating brand identity, advertising in existing spaces, increasing credibility and attraction, packaging products, participating in exhibitions, introducing themselves and their products to others, and many other purposes, they need design services. One type of service offered to you is that before starting the main design, a hand-drawn graphic sketch is provided for your design. Zimex Apex hires professional graphic designers to provide the best graphic design services.

Where is Graphic Design Used?

You will see design in company logos, printed materials such as brochures, posters, postcards, business cards, billboards, and advertisements. With the advancement of digital technology, you will see graphics on websites, online advertising, brochures, virtual presentations, and many other things.

DIFFERENT METHODS OF GRAPHIC DESIGN

1. Image-Based Graphic Design: Designers develop images to showcase ideas that resonate with their clients and allow them to connect with them. Images can be incredibly powerful communication tools that convey not only information but also moods and emotions. People instinctively respond to images based on their personality, memories, and past experiences. In image-based design, images must contain the entire message and convey the main content to the viewer because there are few words for explanation and description. In these images, photos, drawings, designs, or forms may be presented in various ways. Image-based design is used when the designer recognizes that an image truly is worth a thousand words.
2. Text-Based Graphic Design: In some cases, designers rely on words to convey the message, but in a different way than writers do. For graphic designers, the appearance of words is as important as their meaning. In this case, visual forms, whether typographic (visually designed communications using printed words) or hand-lettered, perform many communicative functions and convey the intended message consciously and explicitly to the audience. They can attract your attention to a poster or introduce a product name on a package or truck distinctly and effectively.

Graphic Design Process

FIRST OF ALL

Needs and Objectives Analysis

This stage involves understanding the requirements and goals of the project. It's essential to gather information about the company, its target audience, and the purpose of the design.

AFTER THAT

Ideation and Conceptualization

Here, designers brainstorm ideas and conceptualize the design based on the gathered information. They may create sketches, mood boards, or wireframes to visualize potential designs.

NEXT

Initial Design

Designers create the initial draft or mockup of the design based on the chosen concept. This stage focuses on translating ideas into visual representations using design tools and software.

& THEN

Feedback and Revisions

The initial design is presented to stakeholders for feedback. Based on their input, revisions are made to refine the design further. This iterative process ensures that the final design meets the client's expectations.

FINALLY

Completion and Delivery

Once the design is approved, the final touches are applied, and the completed design is delivered to the client. This stage may involve preparing design files for printing or digital publication, depending on the project requirements.

Graphic Design for Marketing

Marketing design is graphic design for marketing initiatives and customer attraction. Marketing designers may work on small projects, such as email layout design, or large multifaceted projects, such as booth designs, handouts, and print materials for trade shows.

Marketing designers may work on visual design for the following:

- Emails
- Newsletters
- Advertisements and other signage
- Posters
- Print advertisements
- Exhibition booths
- Physical mailers
- Websites

Website Design: Many graphic designers work on visual elements that will be used in a website. However, it's important to note that web design and graphic design are different. Creating an excellent website is a multidisciplinary task as websites are interactive. You need skills in graphic design as well as user experience (UX) and user interface (UI) design. That's why many websites are designed by teams consisting of multiple professionals with various complementary skills.

Web designers may work on projects such as:

- Creating icons and buttons
- Developing images and other graphics
- Designing and laying out web pages
- Creating various interactive design elements on a website
- Creating videos and gifs
- Ensuring visual elements are optimized for all devices (desktop, mobile, etc.)
- Collaborating with web design, UX, UI, and marketing teams to enhance the overall experience for website visitors
- Additionally, many graphic designers are also web designers who have created beautiful websites and mobile applications without the support of a large team.

Illustration Design

Images are often included as part of web design, marketing, and branding. However, they are also used in other ways. Some designers focus solely on providing images and work with larger design teams.

Elevate Your Presence

Illustrators may use their artwork for the following purposes:

- Children's books
- Printing on T-shirts and other apparel
- Cards
- Websites
- Social media
- Video and interactive media
- Marketing campaigns

Illustration styles can vary greatly from one designer to another. Some artists work almost exclusively in digital formats using tools like Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, or Procreate, while others combine digital media with physical media and prefer to start with pencil and paper.

Elevate Your Presence

Infographic Design

Elevate Your Presence

Infographics are essentially tools for visually representing data or information that can be easily understood. Infographics are presented in the form of two-dimensional images, interactive elements on a website, or even in videos. The common theme is that they help the viewer understand more information or complex concepts more easily through images.

Packaging Design

From food to gadgets and jewelry, packaging that products are transported in is often as important as the product itself. The goal of packaging designers is to showcase or complement the information about the items inside the packages.

Lettering Design (Typography)

Some graphic designers specialize in creating typography, lettering, or fonts.

Lettering design may include:

- Creating custom letters and numbers
- Writing or creating typography
- Choosing fonts and creating typographic guidelines for a brand

Humans heavily rely on words to communicate messages, so lettering designers collaborate on a wide range of projects.

Popular Graphic Design Tools

One of the most basic and cost-effective tools that designers use is a sketchbook or drawing pad. Graphic designers often sketch out ideas or quick drafts on paper before turning to the computer to complete the process.

As mentioned, computers and design software are essential in today's digital space, even if you ultimately design for print. The type of computer you need depends on your priorities, but when it comes to software, Adobe products like Photoshop, Illustrator, and InDesign are the cornerstones of the graphic design world.

Ultimately, ideas and inspirations are what a graphic designer needs most. You need to have a solid concept that acts as the foundation for your design and communications. This concept and idea should first work on paper, and then the computer should be used as a tool to bring this concept to life.
